HOW WE HAVE GROWN: NOW I CAN READ AND WRITE IN KINDERGARTEN 3

Reading and writing is taught from the first educational levels and it is one of the learning processes that is in constant practice and progress, since the complexity increases as children move from one school year to another.

At Lakeside we are aware that the learning process, especially in the early years, leaves an imprint on the child that lasts a lifetime. Therefore, this process should be a pleasant experience, full of meaning and significance, where mistakes do not generate anguish, but rather serve to strengthen learning.

Our Kinder 3 Lakesiders gave us a sample of the great progress they have made in the reading and writing process. Little by little they have developed the ability to express themselves through written language and at the same time, enrich the oral language, since for both skills they must interpret the texts and understand the message they want to convey.

Congratulations to all our Kinder 3 Lakesiders for these great achievements!

THE MAGIC OF THE STAGE

Theater is one of the oldest and most valuable art forms in existence. Since immemorial times, it has been a means of communication and expression that connects people with their emotions and thoughts.

It allows us to immerse ourselves in a world of fantasy and creativity, where emotions, stories and diverse characters can be explored. This experience fosters imagination and helps us develop skills to solve problems and face everyday situations.

Theater is a space where children can learn to interact with others, communicate effectively and develop empathy towards others. By witnessing different situations and emotions on stage, they can better understand others' perspectives and develop emotional skills, such as resilience and self-esteem. It enriches their cultural knowledge and allows them to develop an open mind and tolerance towards diversity.

In theater class, our Lakesiders learn different ways to express themselves. They can acquire language and non-verbal communication skills, such as the interpretation of gestures, tone of voice and facial expressions, which will enable them to communicate more effectively in their daily lives.

Through the theatrical experience, Lakesiders can explore new worlds, develop essential skills and learn to relate to others.
